CANTINA

LOS MAYAS

SAN FRANCISCO

BIENVENIDOS to Cantina Los Mayas! We are proud to be the first Wine Bar in the country to feature an exclusively Mexican Wine List. A little history of Mexican Wine:

Spanish conquistadores first planted vines in Coahuila in the late 1500's, pre-dating vine growing in both Chile and Argentina. The region was so well-suited and successful, that the Spanish Crown ordered production halted in fear of New World wine becoming more popular than their Iberian producers. Many Spanish Jesuit missionaries refused to stop, and continued to plant the Misión grape in Baja & Alta California, and by 1791 had re-established production on their own terms. Today, about 90% of Mexico's wine is produced in Valle de Guadalupe, with many of the oldest vineyards centered around Tecate close to the U.S. border, a place that was of utmost importance for the production of wine during the prohibition of alcohol in the U.S.

¿DONDE ESTÁ LA BIBLIOTECA?

Over the course of our first year we have encountered a number of unique and wonderful wines. Due to small production, export difficulties, inclement weather and a variety of other factors, many of the wines we've tasted have very very limited runs. By nature, minimal intervention of wines (as opposed to say, Napa Cabernet Sauvignons) means that year to year bottles can be drastically different. We love the variety and nuanced differences. However we don't always carry every vintage of every producers catalog. Our Library Wines are those wines that are either no longer in production or available (either by vintage, blend, or winery closure). Thus we have some gems to offer for special occasions and collectors.

NATURAL & FUNKY

Natural wine is a huge grey area in the wine world. There aren't any steadfast definitions or requirements to be called natural. In general, most wineries practice organic or biodynamic techniques and involve minimal intervention. Often natural wines are unfiltered (leading to some sediment which is normal) and often with no added sulfites (beyond naturally occurring from the yeast). Many natural wines can be identified from their potent and drastic aromas. Often slightly tart and varied in color; natural wines provide a wonderful look into the variety and complexity of winemaking. With that said, some natural wines are squarely within the middle lane as far as wine flavors and aren't much different than non-natural wines. (Also note, many winemakers practice similar procedures and simply choose to not identify as natural/biodynamic/organic due to personal preference)

Funky wines are one of our passions as well. Many of these wines are natural as well. Some are not but we still love to highlight them in this section as many flavor profiles are similar. You may have hear the term "Orange Wine" as well. In the simplest of terms, Orange Wine refers to white wine being treated and processed more like red wine grapes. This includes the style of maceration, the amount of skin contact, and the vessel the wine is stored in (often clay amphora or wood barrels). Some orange wine is subtle, while others take your breath away with tartness, shockingly dry finishes, chalky/slate minerality, and even flat out astringent "funkiness".

Espuma de Piedra (sparkling rosé) Valle De Guadalupe, Baja	65	A deliciously earthy & funky bubbler. Round with some salinity; it pushes the boundary towards a tart pet-nat.
Casa Vieja, Misión 2019 Valle De Guadalupe, Baja	70	A very chillable red with earthy characteristics. The Misión grape was originally brought by over by Spanish missionaries.
Casa Jipi, Tinto Nebbiolo 2022 Valle De Guadalupe, Baja	48	A young Nebbiolo that has a very light and dry character. The dark fruit offers lusciousness with a dry finish. Chilled.
Casta Natura Chardonnay 2023 Valle De Guadalupe, Baja	52	beautiful, young bright orange chardonnay white wine
Casta Natura Garnacha 2020 Valle De Guadalupe, Baja	55	A very light natural, unfiltered wine. It is slightly tart with rich fruit notes and a short finish. Pairs well with rich & spicy foods.
Ce Acatl Sauvignon Blanc 2023 Valle De Guadalupe, Baja	46	Medium bodied, fruit forward without being too sweet, round finish with hints of ripe stonefruit. Funky but great with spice.
Henri Lurton (orange) Chardonnay 2021 Guanajato	68	This is your into-to-orange wine. Slight french perfume on the nose, off-dry, juicy, but still bright on the palate.
Octogano Tinta, Merlot 2021 Guanajato	68	Natural, light bodied with a little bit of that funk we love, without overpowering the rich fruit flavors.
Vino de la Casa, Bruma Barbera 2019 Valle De Guadalupe, Baja	65	Our barnyard funk bomb!! A dry, earthy red with layers of fruit, leather, tobacco, slate and hints of smoke. Best slightly chilled.

WINE SPOTLIGHT: BICHI

Bichi was founded in 2014 by the Téllez family, who moved to Baja from neighboring Sonora, hence the name Bichi, which means “naked” in the Sonoran Yaqui dialect. They bottled their first vintage that same year, and directly afterward Chilean natural wine trailblazer Louis-Antoine Luyt started collaborating with the Téllez family. Originally from Burgundy, Luyt worked in notable wineries in France before relocating to Chile in 1998, where he is now known for his work with the under-appreciated País grape, which so happens to be the same Misión grape that is found in Tecate. Louis-Antoine convinced Noel to seek out heirloom plantings of Misión, as he had done in Chile, and produce “vinos sin maquillaje” (wines without makeup) from them. Louis-Antoine worked with Bichi until 2017, and Noel is now sole owner, operating the winery with the assistance of Beaujolais-trained Yann Rohel. From finding these almost forgotten heritage vineyards, to day-to-day relationships with local farmers and fabrication of their concrete tinajas, Noel has brought Bichi Wines into the upper echelons of natural Mexican winegrowing.

While Valle de Guadalupe has overall adopted a more technological and modern approach, Bichi adheres to traditional methods and minimal intervention. Bichi farms 10 hectares of their own Tecate vineyards biodynamically and collaborates with a growing family of organic farmers working vineyard land in Tecate and around San Antonio de las Minas (Valle de Guadalupe). Their work with Misión is notable, but you will also find Rosa del Peru (Moscatel Negro), Tempranillo, and in the case of the No Sapiens vineyard a mysterious grape variety that remains unidentified (possibly Carignan from the Spain, or possibly Dolcetto from plantings brought over from Italy in the 1940's). In the winery, grapes are destemmed by hand and gently trodden by foot, and fermentations are carried out by wild yeast in locally-made concrete amphorae. The wines are raised in a mix of neutral barrels and steel vats, with a minuscule 10 ppm of sulfur added at bottling to preserve the wine for travel, if needed.

It's hard not to talk about Bichi without mentioning the labels, which are uniquely Mexican and represent the Téllez family's whimsical sense of humor. Inside the bottles are incredibly vibrant and transparent wines that evoke the nearby Pacific Ocean, the granite soils, and rugged mountain vineyards of their region. Through the persistent work of the family and their farmers and collaborators, lively Baja wine is officially on the map.

Listan 2020 Misión	65	Aged in concrete for 25 days, this bright wine explodes with tart brilliance.
Flama Roja 2020 "Kitchen Sink Blend" of 8 varietals	65	Bichi's home estate wine! Slightly tart & dry, high tannin. A beautiful well balanced blend.
Nicky Snicky 2021 Muscatel, Sauvignon Blanc, Nebbiolo skin	65	A smooth, fruit-forward blend without being overly sweet.
Gordo Guapo 2021 Grenache	65	This is for the Pinot Noir drinkers. Light, with very slight hints of anise and herbality.
El Pancho 2021 Carignan, Misión	65	90% Carignan. This one is WILD. Smokey, tons of brett, dry, and a bit funky.
